

Fall File: SHOPPING

french PETS

Paris has always been crazy for its chats and chiens, but finding a fancy gift for Fido or Fifi has never been easier, with hip entrepreneurs opening fashionable pet boutiques all over town. The city's first, wildly popular doggy day care was started a year ago by Sophie Kauffmann and her husband, Laurent, at CANICRÈCHE. They will also commission an artist to paint a portrait of your pet for €150–€350 (32 rue de Turbigo; 1/42-71-59-09). PINCELOUP, owned by fashion designer and dog owner Couli Jobert, sells gorgeous handcrafted, shamrock-studded leather collars and leashes for €50–€75, as well as pet beds for €90–€290, chew toys for €8–€19, and adorable doggy sunglasses for €30–€40, depending on size (53 quai des Grands-Augustins; 1/44-41-14-74). LES CADORS MARAIS and the new LES CADORS ST GERMAIN offer handmade cashmere sweaters to keep treasured pets warm in winter for €109–€119 (12 rue Ferdinand Duval, 1/44-59-30-46, and 11 rue Princess, 1/43-29-90-17). —Stephanie Ager Kirz

COURTESY LABORATORIO; RICK LEWIGGETT; HOWARD KRIZ

REFINERY29.COM, the online magazine showcasing edgy international designers and hip boutiques, has gone e-commerce. Now R29 fans can buy the ezine's featured items by 3.1 Phillip Lim and Mayle (www.refinery29.com).